

944 SPEC at Buttonwillow in Mid-June

Posted by ChuckS - 22 Jun 2015 19:38

These may not be as exciting as some previous ones, as the racing is not as close as usual.

I lost the big memory cards, so no back facing camera this time.

The temperatures soared to above 106 degrees on Saturday (possibly up to 109) and at least 104 on Sunday. My oil temperatures on Saturday shot WAY to high, so I backed off to save the engine. The temperatures got to a lot of the race cars and racers as well. The EMT's treated four people for heat stroke.

Debby has a good run in her session and chases down an M3 with at least 90 more horsepower, only to well, you will have to watch to find out!

In the final race on Sunday, I make a couple of big mistakes that cost me later on. I finally see a chance to catch Tom, so the last 5 laps I turn the fastest times of the weekend, including the last lap that is the fastest of all the 944's, on what turns out to be a corded tire.

Here they are:

Sat. Race

youtu.be/kdH2Uqa2bHE

Sun Qualifying Race

youtu.be/Ba11UbUEs8U

Sun Race

youtu.be/SW0SKinCYS4

Sun Debby in TT #3

youtu.be/7Q60huohQcM

Re: 944 SPEC at Buttonwillow in Mid-June

Posted by jivenjim - 27 Jun 2015 21:44

We had some great Racing at Buttonwillow.

Thomas was fast and clean. Chuck took the lead on some great starts and great driving.

I was part of Thomas's bumper for much of races.

I too had camera's cutting out from heat some...

Sat race

youtu.be/BJbWc3eDxi8

Sun Qual Race

youtu.be/yQEVn0oUC1M

Re: 944 SPEC at Buttonwillow in Mid-June

Posted by norman#99 - 29 Jun 2015 18:56

Jim H. Great racing, best part is you laughing your a$$ off when you got the pass around the 9 minute mark of the QR.

Hate to see you go:(

=====

Re: 944 SPEC at Buttonwillow in Mid-June

Posted by Atteberry - 29 Jun 2015 20:31

Heck I was laughing just as hard after he passed me sadly video had crapped out so do not see his car bouncing from one curb to another. Hats off to him good pass and I guess you would call that car control. I made have been fast and clean but Jim was a bit faster that day. A great race weekend lots of fun and to quote the British bloody hot.

=====